Explanation of my design:

This new layout gives the screen a fresh and modern feel. Instead of checkboxes, users now select food categories using tag-style chips like “Fruits” or “Red meats,” which makes the screen cleaner and easier to interact with. The dropdown lets users add more tags without making things messy. For persona selection, once a choice is made, a fun card appears with a short description and a relatable image (like a celebrity or anime character) to make it more engaging. Timings are chosen with sliders that go from morning to night. It’s interactive, simple and just feels more enjoyable to use.
